History

Regal Memories If these walls could talk...

This baronial castle, characterized by mighty walls and built on the ancient ruins of a castle owned by the Colonna family, was built in the 10th century on a tuffaceous spur that extends into the center of a valley, which provides it with a perimeter wall.

At the beginning of the 17th century, the most considerable renovations began. The part of the building overlooking the north was built with the central square tower crowned by a battlements, the drawbridge that gives access to the round arched portal and the large and elegant internal courtyard. majestic rooms, some of which were painted by the two major representatives of late Roman Mannerism, the brothers Taddeo and Federico Zuccari, and a graceful internal chapel was built.

In 1889 the new Princes extended and modernized it, giving it the grandeur it presents today. The eastern part was built by joining it with the ancient western part by means of the two overpasses on the main road of the town at the entrance to the gate. The chapel bell tower was replaced with today's central square tower. A round tower was added to the west in harmony with the new one on the east. The numerous rooms were embellished and embellished with decorations and frescoes. The visit of Queen Margherita to San Gregorio, which took place in 1899, was the coveted prize for these works.

In 2020 Ashford Group undertook the castle restoration project in collaboration with the Municipality of San Gregorio da Sassola and the Capitoline Superintendence for Cultural Heritage. Continuing the castle's legacy through management with a touch of luxury, curated by Ashford Group.
